DOCUMENTATION CATALOG

October 17, 1988

Dear Hewlett-Packard Customer,

Welcome to the new Logic Systems Division Document Catalog! The Catalog lists all of the operating and service documentation currently available for HP 64000 system products. You can order documents listed in this catalog by contacting your local HP Sales & Service office.

How To Use The Catalog

There are five columns listed in the Document Catalog:

Product/Assembly# lists the HP product number of a system component; or the assembly number of a documentation assembly. (A document assembly usually contains more than one document.)

Assembly/Part# lists the HP part numbers of document assemblies and actual documents.

Edition is the current edition code of a particular document. The edition references the date of the last change to the document. Edition codes are of the form EMMYY, where E is the prefix, MM represents months 1-12, and YY represents the year. (For example, an edition code of E0188 represents a document that was introduced or changed in January of 1988.)

Update lists the update code for any change sheets supplied with the document. Update codes are read in the same manner as edition codes. (Note: only updates in the U code system are listed in the main catalog. Updates published in the "A", "B", "C" code system are listed in a special supplement at the end of the main catalog.)

Description is the name of the product, description of a document assembly, or title of the manual.

To find all of the documents for a particular product:

 - Look up the product number in the Product/Assembly# column.

 - Look at the list of documents & document assemblies shipped with that product in the Assembly/Part# column.

 - If document assemblies are listed in the Assembly/Part# column, you can obtain more information on these assemblies by looking for their numbers in the Product/Assembly# column.

For example, if you want to know which documents are shipped with the 64742A 68000 Emulator:

 - Look up the 64742A in the Product/Assembly# column. You will see the assembly 64742-99901 in the Assembly/Part# column.

- Look up the 64742-99901 assembly in Product/Assembly# column.
  You will see two documents: 64740-90912, HP 64000 Support Services, and 64742-90901, MC68000 Emulator User's Guide.
  In addition, there is a document assembly, 64740-99901.

- Look up the 64740-99901 assembly in the Product/Assembly# column. You will see 8 documents listed for this assembly:
  5959-6245, 64306-90901, 64740-90901, 64740-90902, 64740-90903, 64740-90904, 64740-90908, and 64740-90909.

In general:

- Numbers with "99" or "999" in the second part of the part number are document assemblies.

- Numbers with "90" or "909" in the second part of the part number are documents.

- Eight digit part numbers are document supplements, such as operating notices, software notices, compatibility guides, etc.

Not All Parts Are Orderable!

Many document assemblies were set up for internal manufacturing purposes only and are not orderable directly from HP. Other document assemblies may be ordered as a unit. If you want all of the manuals listed on a particular document assembly, contact your HP order coordinator for information on whether or not that particular document assembly may be ordered directly. If not, your HP order coordinator can assist you in ordering the individual components for the document assembly.

Also, updates/change sheets listed in the catalog are not orderable as individual items. You must order the manual to receive all of the current updates/change sheets.
